

Since Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, they are obligated by law to serve the public interest. This includes presenting a fair, unbiased opinion. However, in this case, as in many cases, a large company can develop political bias. When such companies dominate the media, diversity necessary to maintain a healthy democracy suffers. It is important that media ownership rules protect citizens' ability to ensure our news and media presents a broad spectrum of issues that are relevant and address the nation's diversity.

If large corporations continue to dominate the public airwaves, they MUST be held accountable. It is the people's tax dollars at stake.
